

DATINGMATTERS®

UNDERSTANDING TEEN DATING VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Do you work with teens?

Teen dating violence affects the health of millions of young people each year, and you can help!

Check out the DATINGMATTERS® Training for Educators—a free, online training that will teach you about teen dating violence and how to prevent it.

Get started here:

vetoviolence.cdc.gov/apps/datingmatters

With a school administrator as your guide, explore the topic of teen dating violence prevention through four video-based learning modules.

Get the Picture

Learn how to recognize and respond to teen dating violence through graphic novel scenarios that illustrate healthy and unhealthy relationships.

Know the Numbers

Find out how this issue affects teens—and to what extent—from current statistics and other relevant research shared by leading experts.

Interactive Exercises

Test the knowledge you've gained and reflect on how this information can be applied to your work with teens in a meaningful way. Continuing Education Units (CEUs) are available.

Access Resources

Gain access to valuable resources—both on our site and beyond—that offer evidence-based programs, strategies, and other tools to help teens develop healthy social skills and relationships.

Centers for Disease
Control and Prevention
National Center for Injury
Prevention and Control

This training is part of CDC's DATINGMATTERS[®] comprehensive teen dating violence model available on  VetoViolence.

To learn more, visit: <https://vetoviolence.cdc.gov/apps/dating-matters-toolkit>.